

THE TERRY Penfiller SALES DEMONSTRATION DATA

SUPPLEMENT "A"

The following information will give you a better understanding of demonstrating the Terry Penfiller. To demonstrate the Penfiller in culling on the trade it is more practical to use water. The Terry Penfiller is spill proof "momentarily." It is not leak proof if shaken very much or left on its side or upside down for a length of time.

(It would be easy to make the Penfiller leak-proof. It could be sealed like a fruit jar but there would then be no atmospheric pressure and consequently the filler would not work.)

When demonstrating the spill proof feature, fluid accumulates between the adaptor and the bottle. In time this will cause leakage. After demonstrating that it is momentarily spill proof, it is advisable to remove the filler unit and wipe away surplus fluid from the threads of bottle and adaptor. Then, re-assemble.

The reason it will leak if kept turned over is because there is an air vent that permits the egress of air when the diaphragm is pushed down by the pen. On the upstroke, when the filler diaphragm returns to normal position it creates a vacuum in the pen. Atmospheric pressure then forces the air back in through the air vent against the fluid and naturally the fluid has to fill the vacuum created in the pen. (By removing the outside case and putting the filler unit on the bottle alone, you can demonstrate this action and see the air being forced out when you press down.)

Penfiller leakage in addition to that explained in above paragraphs is also caused by:

1. Too much ink in the bottle. See direction sheets.
2. Putting the pen in on a slant i.e., not properly seating it in a vertical position.
3. Hitting the lip of the soft rubber diaphragm a glancing blow when you insert the pen.
4. A cracked pen shank or a dented shank which prevents a perfect seal.

SACLESS TYPE PENS

Vacuum Type Pens (with air tube vent in barrel) such as the new Parker, new Waterman and Wahl, (semi-sac, etc.) take three or four quick, vigorous strokes with a momentary pause between each one, to completely fill with the Terry Penfiller. The Penfiller usually fills this type pen more completely than the pen's own mechanism. Penfiller owners, however, do not have to wait until the pen is completely empty. As it begins to empty, one stroke will refill it, "an incidental task," the ink is freshened, the nib is completely vacuum cleaned, and the pen is kept in perfect writing condition.

When a fountain pen is partially empty, the heat of the hand expands the air and causes excessive flow of ink. The smaller the air space the better they function. The Terry Penfiller makes the task of keeping them full a simple and most practical one, an important reason why all fountain pens be kept completely filled—the convenient way—the Terry Penfiller way.

PISTON TYPE PENS

Piston type pens (without the air vent in barrel) such as the new Sheaffer, Wahl, Conklin, Moor., etc. Although the Terry Penfiller will not completely fill the piston or plunger type pen without the use of the pen's own mechanism, it will put a 15% to 20% load in with one stroke. To fill this type pen it is advisable to give them a single preliminary stroke in the Penfiller to flush the nib, and then use the pen's own mechanism to completely fill it. The Penfiller prevents the mess of "dunking," the danger of spilling and fully protects the penpoint from possible injury.

EXTRA DATA

Note: In the case of sac pens having a sliding sleeve on the barrel, the barrel sleeve should be slipped along the barrel when filling with the Penfiller.

When the Penfiller bottle is empty there is practically no resistance and the pen is returned quickly to original position. When the ink supply is ample the pen is returned slowly. Try it both ways and see for yourself.

What sells the Terry Penfiller? A simple, one-minute demonstration. Even with a million dollars worth of advertising, you still have to show your prospect how it works. "How it works" sells it. The importance of demonstrating the Terry Penfiller cannot be over-emphasized. Put the Terry Penfiller in stock and it will stay there—demonstrate it and you enjoy the profit earnings it will bring you. One properly sold user will sell many others for you.

FILLING YOUR FOUNTAIN PEN this way WAS SUCH A Nuisance!

Uncorking an ink bottle always makes a mess.

You dip the pen too far—get ink on the pen grip.

You must keep a clean-up rag or blotter handy.

You usually have to wash your hands after pen filling.

And you can so easily ruin valuable papers.

That's Why the Automatic Terry

Penfiller
TRADE MARK

was Invented

The Terry Penfiller fills fountain pens automatically. All you do is press the point of your pen into the opening. The Penfiller flushes out the old ink and refills your pen fuller than it has ever been before. It cleans the pen feed, makes the ink flow more freely, makes your pen a better writing instrument, and saves pen repair bills.

All this the Terry Penfiller does almost instantly! And the Penfiller is so attractive, you gladly keep it on your desk, always within easy reach. Whenever your pen runs dry, you simply reach out, press down . . . and go on writing again. You'll never do without the Terry Penfiller, once you've learned its convenience. Come in and try one today.

A ROMANCE OF INDUSTRY

Some years ago Mr. O. R. Terry, President of the Terry Penfiller Company and a supervising engineer in A. T. & T. Co., compiled a great deal of engineering data which he painstakingly wrote in ink, preparatory to having it typed. After weeks of arduous work he had the stack of carefully written data just about completed, when his fountain pen ran dry. In refilling it he had the misfortune to overturn the inkwell with his fountain pen. The ink saturated the papers and in one moment ruined weeks of careful endeavor.

What went on in his mind must have been pretty rough on the English language. One extreme begets the other. Out of the chaos of despair came the development of the Terry Penfiller--a dedication to man's relief from such a painful and distressing experience. So, today the Terry Penfiller makes what was an annoyance a mere incident--a pleasurable experience--and brings to pass that which has always been claimed for but never fully accomplished by the fountain pen.

What is progress? It is all that which contributes to comfort and human happiness. How many letters which should have been written to bring solace to mother, father, brother, sister, a good friend--just a few words to let them know you were thinking of them--alas, were neglected? Why? Because the fountain pen ran dry. How many written tasks were put off until too late? How much should have been done that wasn't, because of the annoyance of filling the pen?

Social dictum decrees ink, mess or no mess. Terry Penfiller decrees the joy of complying with social dictum without mess. It makes staid conventions delightful and brings gladness to aching hearts as one has no excuse to put off long deferred letters.

So, the Terry Penfiller fulfills its mission in life, changes despair into joy, annoyance into pleasure, a task into a mere incident, and contributes to progress. TRULY

In answer to your letter of June 21 the Terry Penfiller is a very good item, if left on trial for a few days, nine times out of ten they are sold.

The Office Outfitters

Customers who have purchased this item from us apparently are well satisfied with it.

We recently ran a small ad which brought us fairly good results, also, and we believe that in the fall this will be an excellent item for gift promotion.

It may interest you to know that in our store the other day I had occasion to prove by actual test that the TERRY PENFILLER filled fountain pens better than the fountain pens filled themselves.

In answer to your inquiry regarding the need for some fountain pen filler that really does work, I am glad to personally recommend the new TERRY PENFILLER.

We are glad to give you our experience in selling Terry Penfillers as requested in your letter of the 14th. We have several of our salesmen who are doing a very good job selling penfillers, and one of our men is doing a very nice job of it and so far we haven't had any kick back on its performance and on the whole we would say it is a very desirable item from a selling standpoint.

We are indeed glad to know that you are planning on an extensive selling campaign and this should assist materially in increasing its sale.

GOOD NEWS FOR 50,000,000 FOUNTAIN PEN USERS

You will never again have to hunt for ink. Unlike the old fashioned, ugly ink bottle that everyone hides, the Terry Penfiller is an evaporation-proof, corkless ink container that is so good looking you are proud to keep it on your desk ready for instant use.

There is no "cleaning up" after filling your fountain pen this modern way. The Terry Penfiller puts ink in your pen not on it. Ink cannot rise above the pen point. No "dunking" . . . no dirty rags or blotters needed . . . no time-out for washing hands after fountain pen filling.

You completely avoid the ink bottle mess . . . no inky or crumbly cork to soil fingers, papers, or clothes . . . no more upset-bottle catastrophes. The Terry Penfiller will not spill ink on papers or desk if momentarily upset.

The Mess and Bother of Fountain Pen Filling are Ended

You will hardly believe your own eyes when you see how quickly, easily, simply the Terry Penfiller puts an end to the mess and bother of fountain pen filling. When your pen runs dry you merely reach out, press it into a Terry Penfiller and

DOUBLE SERVICE

The Terry Penfiller not only provides the only automatic means of filling your fountain pen, but is also a self-closing, dust-proof, evaporation-proof, practically spill-proof ink well at all times into which you can dip ordinary steel pens.

The Mess and Bother of Fountain Pen Filling are Ended

You will hardly believe your own eyes when you see how quickly, easily, simply the Terry Penfiller puts an end to the mess and bother of fountain pen filling. When your pen runs dry you merely reach out, press it into a Terry Penfiller and in less than 5 seconds it is fully refilled automatically . . . automatically, because you do not even touch the filling device built into your fountain pen. The Terry Penfiller does the whole job and does it so quickly and easily that you can now refill your fountain pen in the middle of writing a sentence without interrupting your thoughts.

The Terry Penfiller not only turns fountain pen filling from a messy task into a mere incident, but it keeps your fountain pen a better writing instrument. A powerful suction within this modern magic inkwell flushes (actually vacuum cleans) the ink passages in your pen every time you fill it. And, because the delicate writing point of your pen is held suspended in a Terry Penfiller, it cannot be bent or damaged as so often happens in filling from a bottle.

The Terry Penfiller is the final step in making the modern fountain pen a wholly reliable, trouble-free convenience. Use a Terry Penfiller for 10 days and you would never think of being without one. Ideal for every home. Indispensable in any office. A perfect gift for man, woman or child. Offered in six attractive colors in Bakelite and Plaskon as illustrated. Also comes in a metal, streamlined model in English Bronze, Statuary Bronze, Satin Chrome or Polished Chrome finish. Priced at a little more than an ordinary inkwell from $1.95 and up. Ask for a demonstration.
